The Railway Inn, Thatchers

Client: Thatchers Holdings

Architect: David James & Partners

QS/Employers Agent: David James & Partners

Works completed: In 8 Months

Project Value: £1.3 Million

Overview: The railway Inn was an old village pub. Sadly the building was falling into a state of disrepair even though it was still fully operational until 2014. The 140 year old pub was next to Thatchers cider, who bought it in order to extend the local watering hole and restore it to its former glory. As the pub was important to the local community, the aim was to keep as much of the original frontage of the building as possible. A large traditional oak frame was installed, and natural stone was used throughout with all materials being locally sourced. The area around was heavily landscaped in order to integrate in to its country surroundings.
